The basic chord at music[/caption] Once you know and record all the basic chord, it is time you tried to play the key. Following the steps: * Learn to press the strings on a fret or metal perpendicular to the neck of the guitar. Make sure you only feel the vibration on the finger that presses the strings only. * Start playing the basic key you have already noted. Choose what you think is easy. For example A key, because it is still in the same segment. * Do not just play course. Try you can put out a melodious and clear tone. * Once you've successfully played one basic chord, it's time to try to play the other key. Repeat the steps above to make another key. If you can all, do not immediately rush to play a song. Practice regularly so that you know the key and your fingers will be more skillful in playing it. Usually for beginners in playing guitar, they often fear wrong so not confident in playing the guitar. Most of them always looked down and focused only on the movements of his fingers. Actually, this habit should not let you. Try to grow a strong sense of confidence. To be able to grow the confidence when practicing the guitar, try to play the guitar while chatting or watching TV. Your attention will be distracted and no more focus on finger movements. This method can also train the fingers to be more cunning in playing the chord of the guitar.
